

Create content box

All content being created has two attributes:

- A content type (e.g. topic, article, faq, etc)
- An information space (i.e. where it lives)

This box will only display the content types that the current user has permission to create. Similarly, it only shows the information spaces they have permission to create in.

To create a new content item just choose the appropriate content type and information space and click New.

The default options in this box correspond to the type of content you are currently viewing (usually a topic) and the information space where it lives. In most cases you will not need to change the information space that is to be used.
