Autonomy and participation

Identifying and definitional attributes

Item type: Framework Dimension

METEOR identifier: 392703

Description: Autonomy and participation are considered to be essential indicators of welfare, and reflect the very human and personal aspects of individuality, and workplace and community interactions that are vital to positive wellbeing. Data relating to autonomy the capacity to have freedom of opportunity and choice in daily living and participation in the community provide information on personal and environmental factors that make up welfare.

Further sub-dimensions are autonomy and participation:

education and knowledge, economic resources, employment, transport and communication, and recreational use of time.

These indicators not only identify our individual resources and our national employment patterns, but also reflect the ways in which Australians interact within society.

Dimensions of this framework

Economic resources and security

Identifying and definitional attributes

Item type: Framework Dimension

METEOR identifier: 392708

Description: The material standard of living enjoyed by individual Australians primarily depends on their command of economic resources, both in the immediate and long term. Economic factors are related to all aspects of the welfare framework, including health, education, employment and social networks.

Indicators to describe the economic wellbeing of Australians . While income data are the most commonly reported measures of economic status, an individual's income can fluctuate dramatically across different life stages, and alone does not determine material quality of life. Other factors are the extent to which income is 'buffered' by accumulated wealth, and the amount of economic resources needed to fulfil different financial commitments.

Education and knowledge

Identifying and definitional attributes

Item type: Framework Dimension

METEOR identifier: 392707

Description: Education and knowledge help to empower individuals and allow them to become more autonomous within society. Education is increasingly viewed as a lifelong process by which both individuals and their communities benefit from the acquisition of new knowledge and skills. Education relates to many other facets of society, including employment, health and participation in the civic, cultural and social life of communities. Three major indicators of education and knowledge are: participation, attainment and literacy.

Employment and labour force participation

Identifying and definitional attributes

Item type: Framework Dimension

METEOR identifier: 392706

Description: Employment provides avenues for income and as such is a major factor influencing material wellbeing. In addition, employment is strongly related to other aspects of the welfare framework. It is recognised as an integral part of adult participation in society, providing individuals with opportunities for personal development and social interaction. Indicators include:

Labour force participation and employment

Employment basis and conditions

Employment and labour force differentials

Recreation and leisure

Identifying and definitional attributes

Item type: Framework Dimension

METEOR identifier: 392705

Description: Participation in recreational and leisure activities contributes to overall wellbeing through benefits to physical and mental health, and by providing opportunities for social interaction and community engagement. The importance of leisure time is recognised by the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which states that 'Everyone has the right to rest and leisure, including reasonable limitation of working hours and periodic holidays without pay' (UN 1948).

Transport and communication

Identifying and definitional attributes

Item type: Framework Dimension

METEOR identifier: 392704

Description: Having access to reliable transport allows people to participate and interact with the community. Reliable transport not only enhances social wellbeing but can also broaden access to jobs, which in turn may increase financial security.

Access to means of communication is also beneficial to many aspects of welfare. The rapid increase in communication technologies is making interpersonal communication more accessible through mobile phones and over the Internet. This enables greater access to many more educational and social resources.
