

Olivocochlear

Identifying and definitional attributes

Metadata item type:	Glossary Item
Synonymous names:	Olivocochlear system; Olivocochlear bundle
METEOR identifier:	574918
Registration status:	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Indigenous, Standard 05/12/2017
Definition:	A fibre tract in the ear called the olivocochlear bundle. It constitutes an efferent system, or feedback loop, by which nerve impulses, thought to be inhibitory, reach the hair cells. This system, which uses acetylcholine as a neurotransmitter, is presumably involved in sharpening, or otherwise modifying hearing.

Source and reference attributes

Reference documents:	The Editors of Encyclopædia of Britannica. Encyclopædia Britannica Online, s. v. "olivocochlear bundle". Viewed 22 May, 2014, http://www.britannica.com/EBchecked/topic/427818/olivocochlear-bundle .
-----------------------------	---

Relational attributes

Metadata items which use this glossary item:	Closing the Gap/Child Health Check Initiative: Ear, nose and throat operation summary form DSS <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Indigenous, Standard 05/12/2017 Olivocochlear intact indicator <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Indigenous, Standard 05/12/2017 Olivocochlear mobile indicator <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Indigenous, Standard 05/12/2017 Patient—olivocochlear intact indicator <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Indigenous, Standard 05/12/2017 Patient—olivocochlear intact indicator, yes/no code N <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Indigenous, Standard 05/12/2017 Patient—olivocochlear mobile indicator <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Indigenous, Standard 05/12/2017 Patient—olivocochlear mobile indicator, yes/no code N <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Indigenous, Standard 05/12/2017
---	--